

Abstract of the invention

In An image forming system having a plurality of printers and an image processing apparatus connected each other through a network, a printer to be sent a print job from the image processing apparatus is selected based on a degree of matching of a comparison between kinds of image size in the job and kinds of paper size installed in each printer.